Gould Loses Battle To Alumni 37-34

The Alumni and Gould played "hang-up" basketball last Friday with the Alumni holding a slim edge as the whistle blew. Too much height and too much Bob Browne spelled defeat for the hard fighting midgets. Brown collected eight baskets and two free throws for a total of 18 points. "Lanky" Austin with eight points proved a little too big for the youngsters under the basket.

For the undergraduates, Parker Brown was outstanding, holding the sharp shooting Don Stanley scoreless and then changing over to hold Bob Browne to one basket in the last half. He also, along with Robertson, led in the Gould scoring with three baskets and a free throw for seven points.

The game proved a thriller as Gould matched the old timers point for point during most of the game. The first period ended 10-3 for Gould and the half was 19-13 for the Alumni. In the third period the winners assumed a 32-27 advantage but in the early stages of the final quarter the Blue and Gold staged a rally that brought them to within a point of the leaders, the score being 32-31. Here Charley Smith sank a long shot and Austin followed with a tip-in shot which really clinched the game.

In a preliminary game the Gould Second team played poorly and lost to West Paris 20-17. Both teams scored seven field goals but the West Paris boys were successful in sinking six out of eight free throws while the Gould underdogs made three out of nine. Smith, for the victors and R. Wentzel for the home team, played the best ball for their respective teams.

Mechanic Falls Wins 42-21

With two men trying to guard him, Keene still starred, collecting 23 points for his team. That was mainly the story of the game. The locals were up against a bigger and better team. The Gould midgets found it almost impossible to guard their taller opponents without fouling.

The losers played poorly getting off to a bad start they fell behind 11-0 at the first quarter and seemed unable to hit their stride.

The Gould girls also tasted defeat 27-21 although they showed considerable improvement over their play in previous games.

On April 18, 1905, he married Miss Maude Swan of Bethel, who survives, with a son, Winnifred Swan of Locke Mills, and a daughter, Mrs. Flora Hutchinson of Mexico. ## Jobs Grow In La

New Employment is Created by Machines in Industry

The popular fallacy that machines have created unemployment in America is flatly contradicted by a study of the subject which has just been completed by McGraw Hill Publishing Co.

According to this study, the number of which were published in the August issue of the magazine, "Factory" jobs have increased faster than population in this country during the very period when machine age was developing rapidly.

From 1899 to 1929, while population of the United States increased from 74,759,000 to 120,000,000 or 62 1/2 per cent, and all jobs increased 88 per cent, the factories showed an increase of 100 per cent. The total number of factory jobs in 1929 at the rate of the machine age was 3,511,000 compared with 4,712,000 in the study showed.

The number of gainfully employed increased from 330 per thousand of population in 1899 to 400 per thousand in 1929 while the number of machines were being installed. During the same period study showed 182 out of 1,000 men at work were employed.

College Seeks Reason For High Hay Yields

Among the many activities of the crops specialists of the University of Maine Extension Service last year, the organization of a 700-Pound-Protein club in Franklin county was probably the most unusual. Men interested in qualifying for membership set aside at least half of their hayland, from each acre of which they were to cut a minimum of 2½ tons of hay containing 700 pounds of crude protein or more. County agent Ralph Corbett, Farmington, recorded a complete history of each field, and cut a sample of at least one square foot from each acre. These samples were analyzed at the University of Maine. Samples were taken from 29 fields on the nine farms, and the average yield was 6668 pounds of hay to the acre. The average protein content per acre varied from 705 pounds on one farm to 1310 pounds on the highest yielding farm. Seeding which had been down for five years produced about as much hay as that being cut for the first time, but the yield in terms of protein was about one-third lower on the older fields, due largely to difference in the clover stand. Early cutting of fields with a high percentage of timothy gave a decided increase in the protein content.

No special fertilizer applications account for these yields, which are about three and a half times the state average, for the club requirements were not announced until most men had completed their spring fertilizer program. The yield was not proportional to the amount of clover or timothy in the stand. Detailed analysis of the soils, and careful study of the past history of these fields is now underway. Working with the Maine Experiment Station, the Extension Service expects that this information will aid them in making more specific recommendations on how to reduce the grain bill of Maine farmers.

The popular fallacy that machines have created unemployment in America is flatly contradicted by a study of the subject which has just been completed by the McGraw Hill Publishing Company.

According to this study, the results of which were published in the August issue of the magazine "Factory," jobs have increased faster than population in this country during the very period when the machine age was developing most rapidly.

From 1899 to 1929, while the population of the United States increased from 74,799,000 to 121,526,000 or 62½ per cent, and while all jobs increased 68 per cent jobs in factories showed an increase of 87 per cent. The total number of factory jobs in 1929 at the height of the machine age was 5,822,000 as compared with 4,713,000 in 1899, the study showed.

The number of gainfully employed increased from 290 per thousand of population in 1899 to 400 per thousand in 1929 while more and more machines were being installed during the same period, the study showed 182 out of every thousand at work were employed

The number of gainfully employed between 1899 and 1929 increased faster than the population of the country, as shown by the above chart. But jobs in manufacturing industries, where great technological advancement was made, increased even faster than general employment.

In factories in 1899 but by 1929 the number had increased to 180 out of every thousand at work.

A close relationship between machines and wages was discovered in the fact that total horsepower installed in factories increased from 3,111,000 in 1879 to 42,585,000 in 1929 or 12½ times. During the same period, however, total factory wages increased from $318,000,000 to $11,667,000,000 or 12½ times.

"If America had kept on doing all its work by hand," the magazine comments, "this rapid increase of jobs and wages never would have come. There would have been no automobiles, no radio, few of the 'good things of life' now in general use."

Why Do They Come Here?

There is more being done for average people living in Germany, Italy, Russia and China than ever before in the history of mankind. Despite that fact, there is a great smuggling racket going on right now to get people into the United States by illegal means.

Chinamen Dropped Overboard From Planes

Today Magazine recently pointed out that "Traffic in human beings goes on by foot, by train, by car, by ship, by air, with all its ramifications of racketeering, fraud, and murder. About half of the aliens who enter U. S. illegally are believed to wade their way across the Rio Grande as the river trickles through desert land, 1,650 miles long. Less common than the river crossing at the Mexican border is the flight of planes carrying the Chinese alien (tariff: $50 to $500). Secret societies in Chinese towns accept candidates for transportation to America; agent, middleman, deliverer, and the ultimate employer form an intricate chain of corruption and graft. Nine times out of ten the alien is a pawn, pushed about by a powerful ring, pursued by extortionists; he cannot protest for he is a law-breaker subject to deportation. Chinese have to wait months in Mexico or the West Indies during which they are held in virtual slavery—a condition which often continues after delivery, until the debt with the smuggler has been wiped out. There have been known cases where Chinese have been dropped overboard from airplanes when the patrol gave chase."

Home Countries Try to Stop Them

The extreme hardships which men will endure to get into this country are only matched by what they must sometimes suffer in an effort to get away from their home lands. There were 248,221 demands for quota immigration visas at consular offices on June 30, 1936. 45% of these were for Germans and Poles.

A Hollywood actor who was originally one of the "wild boys" of Russia says that people who have lived here from birth do not begin to appreciate America. He had a hard time getting out of Russia.

"As As Much As Ye Have Done It"

America has probably produced more self-made men in 200 years who have really gotten ahead and made something of their opportunities than any other nation.

But people who get ahead here do not forget how hard they had it and try to make the going better for others.

America's generosity proved itself on the quick test to which it was put by recent floods. But this serves to remind us that there was a known 20% increase in gifts to worthy causes in 1936.

The comparative figures for six cities as compiled by the John Price Jones Corporation of New York are as follows:

	1934	1935
Education	$19,456,752	$10,920,563
Organized
Relief	8,978,928	9,578,131
Health	2,652,440	8,756,371
Religious
Purposes	2,434,477	2,479,815

How Much Influence Have You?

Everyone exerts some influence for good or ill on those about him and through them on unborn generations. True as this is, our degree of influence may not always be as great as we may suppose.

For instance, the powerful American press is not always as influential as it would like to be. The New Hampshire for Jan. 13 revealed how little effect editorials have on Congress.

"Every bill of major importance that came before the 74th Congress with virtually unanimous editorial support was defeated, and every bill that was fought to the last ditch editorially was passed."

BLOCKING THE ROAD

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner

Table, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual, National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

The average citizen has heard relatively little of foreign affairs lately. Events at home—the election, the convening of Congress, the strikes, the unprecedented floods in the Middle West and South—have taken all his attention.

Yet the foreign situation has grown steadily more menacing.

In Spain, for example, a civil war is going on. Everyone knows that. What everyone doesn't know is that a general European war, on a small scale, is likewise going on in Spain. All the major nations have paid lip service to the cause of neutrality in Spanish affairs—but the fact remains, according to every fact-finding newspaperman who has returned from the Spanish battlefronts, that several European nations have troops actively engaged in Spanish battles, are supplying one side or the other with airplanes, rifles, cannon, ammunition and food. For instance, when the rebellion began, a rebel leader Franco had almost no tanks—now he has great numbers of the most up-to-date type. And the loyalist had no air force worthy of the name—now they have a considerable number of fairly modern, well-armed ships.

Principal participating nations are Russia, Germany, Italy and France. Germany and Italy side with the rebels, who are Fascistic in tendency and purpose. Russia and France side with the loyalists, who include Communists, Socialists, Syndicalists and Republicans.

To what extent are these foreign nations taking an active interest in Spain? Vivid answer is supplied by Major Al Williams, famous racing pilot, who recently made a European tour for the purpose of evaluating Europe's air armadas. According to Major Williams, "One pilot, who had served in the rebel army, told me it was getting tough for a native to find something to do in that civil war. Russia, Germany, Italy and France had all but taken it over for a warming-up session of their new war machines."

Finally, why are these nations mixing in a civil war that, theoretically, is none of their business? The answer to that is two-fold.

First, there is a good chance that a loyalist victory would result in the establishment of a communist regime in Spain. Italy and Germany, leading fascist powers, are determined to do everything possible to prevent that—it would threaten their hopes for the gradual extension of fascism through all of Europe. If the same token, a rebel victory would be followed by a fascist Spanish government, as General Franco has said. And if that happened, they would be put in France and Russia feel that it is a great danger, inasmuch as they would be surrounded by unfriendly nations.

The second phase of the answer is given by intimation in the quotation from Major Williams. The chatter of diplomats to the contrary, it is a reasonable assumption that Europe would be at war now if the antagonistic powers were not held back by fear of each other's possible strength. It is no secret that Germany would attack France tomorrow, if she were confident she could win—and that France would do the same thing, given the same assurance. Civil war in Spain is providing these powers with a chance to try out their fighting equipment—and the General Staffs are watching with unabated interest.

This "international civil war" has killed thousands of Spaniards. It has laid Spain waste. And it is, perhaps, preparing the way toward the most sanguinary general conflict in world history. Today all Europe is an armed camp—and its weapons are infinitely greater both in number and potential destructiveness than before the World War. It is very possible that if one of the powers becomes satisfied that the "tests" made in Spain show it to be superior to a neighboring unfriendly power, the blow-off will come with breath-taking suddenness.

So far as America is concerned the State Department obviously realizes the dangers in Europe—is seeking to formulate an equitable and workable neutrality policy. There is a great deal of debate going on among those with different views. It seems certain that the President will be given wide discretionary powers in dealing with foreign crises. It also seems certain that the old doctrine, dramatized by Wilson, of "freedom of the seas" will be dropped, in the hope of keeping out of conflict.

14,000 Miles on Horseback

"We warrant he'll finish the journey standing up!" Thus does Harry Price conclude an item in Review of Reviews for February in which he states that R. M. Reid of Melbourne has already started on horseback for the coronation in London next spring.

Dobrayvetcher

Harry Price also says in Review of Reviews that "Dobrayvetcher" is a more or less phonetic way of saying "Good Evening" in Russian, and our way of saluting the approaching twentieth anniversary of the Soviet Regime this Summer.

Announcement of the celebrations planned for this event already are causing a rush of bookings, particularly to the Black Sea resorts, where the climate is much like that of our own Florida.

Funny about this Black Sea business. Its name belies its beauty; at least the beauty of its shores. Flowers in profusion...nearly every building has its flower garden. And this is the setting in which you'll find Yalta.

There are few more delightful drives than along the motor road from the railroad on the Southern shore, Sevastopol, to Yalta. Most of the buildings are white "Palaces" once owned by the wealthy landowners and nobility of the old regime; now remodelled to accommodate hundreds of Soviet peasants and workers, where formerly they housed but a few people. The new buildings have been modernized to a degree, including sanatoria with the most up-to-date medical equipment.

Yalta itself—nestled in a valley of the hills, behind a seawall harboring fleets of porpoise fishing boats, regular Black Sea steamers and larger vessels from the Mediterranean—gets our vote as an ideal vacation spot. We know several friends who've been there, and vouch for it.

Hitler Happy in Homeland Progress

Though feeling himself "firmly seated in his saddle" Hitler did not ride rough shod over other peoples in his recent speech celebrating his fourth year as Chancellor of Germany.

He pointed to accomplishments in shaking off the shackles imposed by the Versailles treaty. He made it clear that only London could decide how much armament Britain needed to defend herself and that Berlin alone could decide similarly for Germany. Retortation was made of former statements that Germany expects some of her colonies back—which were taken as prizes of the World War.

While it is plain to all that Germany has regained her position as one of the leading nations of the world by all but pauperizing herself in military outlay, Hitler insisted that a little financial help from the outside world would not come amiss.

Blum of France and Eden of England anticipated his speech in addresses they made several days previous. Both put forth the idea in different words, that if Hitler expected outside help and co-operation, it would not be improper for him to show his good intentions for world peace by deeds instead of mere words.

Were His Sleeves Puffed? George Bernard Shaw said recently "I was not offered the Order of Merit because the government knew I had already conferred it upon myself." The self-sufficient can do such things for themselves. But, at that, our guess is that George's sleeves were puffed with laughter when he said it.

Credit Where Credit Is Due

Adolph Hitler recently said, "We must have that which is the most indispensable of all raw materials—the ore of the iron heart!"

Whatever else we think about Hitler and his regime we must admit that much has been accomplished to better the living conditions of the average German family without resort to anything like the bloodshed which has occurred in other countries. The credit is possibly due in large part to the raw materials above mentioned.

Taxes on Industry Take 34 Cents For Every Dollar Paid in Wages

Executive Salaries Equal Only 3 Per Cent of Payrolls

Contrary to the general public belief, the salaries of the men who run American industry are only 3 per cent of the total industrial payroll in this country, it is disclosed in a study of the subject just completed by the McGraw Hill Publishing Company. Results of the study which were published in the magazine "Factory," show that if the salary of all the executives in manufacturing were equally divided among factory employees, each worker would get 79 cents a week more.

On the other hand, for every dollar which industry puts into wages for workers, it must set aside another 34 cents for taxes. The tax bill on industry has risen from seven per cent of the payroll dollar in 1923 to 34 per cent today, it is revealed in a recent study made by The National Association of Manufacturers.

For every dollar industry pays out in payroll in years to come, it will have to pay in addition to

Source: Nat'l. Ass'n. of Manufacturers

For every dollar which American manufacturers put into wages for their workers, they must pay an average of 34 cents in taxes. This was revealed by a recent study. The taxes it now pays, another 2.78 cents in 1937; 3.78 cents in 1938; 4.17 cents in 1942 and 5.33 cents in 1949 for unemployment compensation and old age insurance.

OXFORD COUNTY UNITED PARISH

Events great and interesting are in the air. The days that roll by so swiftly are bringing us ever nearer to the Twelfth Annual Winter Carnival. You have seen the posters and the programs will be within your hands within a day or two. Just arrange your work so that you can be with the crowd enjoying the fun. Bring the children. It is a great play day for them, and it is surely good for them. The Carnival is fulfilling its purpose when we bring together a large group of children, and those older as well, and deepen the interest of all in the joy to be found in the great out of doors on these good winter days. We hope to see you around on the 20th.

You will notice that the Drama this year—Here Comes Patricia—is going to be played two nights. It is hoped by doing this that the congestion in the hall on Saturday night may be relieved. On Saturday night we will have the crowning of the Queen and the Awarding of Prizes. In addition to the play; but on Friday evening following the drama we will have the Carnival Frolic. We will hope to give a good time then to all. Well, just fix the great day of the winter in your mind and plan to bring the family.

Lent is at hand. During Lent Mr. Swank is holding for the Sunday School Teachers, and others who are interested, a Bible Study Hour. The first meeting of this group will be at the North Waterford School House, Wednesday evening, Feb. 10th. We commend this to you all and hope that many of you will be able to be present for these hours of profitable study.

Before you read this, we hope that all in the Parish will have received the Fellowship of Prayer. If you have received no copy, please let us know at once.

On Sunday evening, the Young People will meet at the North Waterford Vestry, for the first meeting of the "Pastors' Class" for this year. If you have questions to ask concerning some of the problems and perplexities of life write them out and give them to the Staff. We will discuss them during the following Sunday evening meetings.

Men of the Parish, look here! Next Monday evening at 7:30 you are invited to gather at the Knight's of Pythias Hall at East Stoneham to hear Mr. Charles Snow speak on Journey's Thru Maine. You know the price of admission is ten cents and a few doughnuts or something of the kind; and you don't have to bring the doughnuts. That ought to be a right good time. Shortly, you will receive a folder giving the schedule of Lenten Services held in cooperation with the Congregational Churches of South Paris and Norway. The first services in the Parish will be held a week from next Wednesday. A good attendance is going to help make this Lenten Series most stimulating.

Superphosphate Saves Value Of Farm Manure

Practically all of the plant food used in growing the feed used on Maine farms is left on the farm in the manure, says Oscar L. Wyman, assistant crops specialist in the University of Maine Extension Service. Nitrogen losses through drainage can be prevented only by proper storing of the manure, but loss through decomposition can be avoided by adding superphosphate. This also supplements the phosphorus content of manure, a plant food in which it is low.

Speaking of the relation between wise use of manure and the agricultural conservation program, Mr. Wyman says:

"Mixing superphosphate with manure has always paid well. Now, through the 1937 agricultural conservation program, you may earn a payment for the practice, making it even more profitable. Under the conservation program, from 15 to 25 pounds of 20% superphosphate may be used with each ton of manure. Payment for the practice varies from 12 to 18 cents for each ton of manure so treated."

"To obtain the best results, and to qualify under the conservation program you should use from three-fourths of a pound to a pound of superphosphate each day for each horse or cow."

"Ten to fifteen tons of manure reinforced with superphosphate and properly handled is equal to 15 to 25 tons as commonly applied. Night to fifteen tons, plowed or harrowed in, have given the best results. Mix to ten tons of manure has proved satisfactory as a top dressing."

"Soul, or Spirit, is God, unchangeable and eternal; and man coexists with and reflects Soul, God, for man is God's image" (Page 120: 4).

NORTH CAROLINA GOVERNOR GIVES VIEWS ON LIQUOR

"I am not a fanatic on the liquor question, but I continue to regard liquor as Public Enemy No. 1," declared Gov. Clyde R. Hoey, in his recent inaugural address as Governor of North Carolina.

"I have not changed either my opinion or position on this question," he said, "and I do not believe any solution has been found for this vexing problem. Personally, I cannot subscribe to the doctrine that the way to advance the cause of temperance and decrease drinking is to provide all the liquor you want and make it easily obtainable and readily accessible. You will never build a great state or a great country upon profits derived from the sale of liquor."

N. E. WHITTAKER ANTICS UNREPEATED

Only a few people realize that the changeable weather, characteristic of our New England climate, is helpful to them, according to Phil E. Church, weather expert, writing in the February issue of the Yankee Magazine.

"Weather changes," says Mr. Church, "provided they are not too severe, have been proved by many laboratory experiments to be stimulating to both body and mind. Heat brain work is produced when the temperature is near the 40 degree mark. Almost daily during the autumn, winter, and spring, a part of New England's each 24 hours has this temperature. But the human mind, like the body, cannot work at a maximum for more than a short time without relaxation. Temperatures above and below the optimum provide the needed rest."

"When rhythmic change every few days the mind is alternately relaxed and stimulated. New England has an enviable climate from this standpoint."

Even the stock season has its uses, according to Mr. Church. "Spring is discouragingly long to arriving. March and April seem to be just a long period of slush and rain.... Frequent raw, humid east winds blow, that chill one to the bone.... Though the snow has delayed the coming of spring, it has performed a notable task; to wit, when finally gone, the sun is so high and the season so well advanced that the chance of another killing frost is materially reduced. Fruit trees can bud and blossom with safety. This condition is one of the main contributing factors for New England being such a large producer of fruits."

AUTOMOBILE STRIKES AFFECT EVERY STATE IN THE UNION

The automobile industry is one of America's largest buyers of raw materials and manufactured products. The map above shows a few of the principal products bought by motor manufacturers in each of the 48 states, at a total cost for 1936 estimated at more than $1,600,000,000. Significant as this is in indicating the nation-wide effects of a strike, it is far from complete. Another map might show, state by state, the thousands of dealers and salesmen directly affected. There is no way to picture indirect losses in retail sales and ingovernment revenue through reduced taxes and increased relief.

Colonial Furniture Work ## of the Earliest Settlers

The term colonial, as applied to early American furniture, is properly employed to indicate furniture used in the colonies before they became states. When it is remembered that the Dutch settled in New York, the English in New England and Virginia, and the French in Louisiana, it is obvious that the best colonial furniture was of three different styles, declared a writer in the Indianapolis News. There were many good cabinetmakers in the colonies, and their products were based on the current modes of their mother countries. The colonial style, as such, resulted chiefly from simplification, omission of ornament, and adaptation of the best European practice.

That a blending of styles occurred is evident in some of the chairs of early New York, in which may be found a typical Dutch side-back, Jacobean legs, and Spanish feet. The Windsor chair was of English origin, but was greatly improved upon in America. The rocking-chair was an American product, but the date of its introduction is unknown.

Most important of the early cabinet work was that of Duncan Phyfe, a Scot who came to America about 1784 and, after establishing himself at his trade in New York, produced, between the years 1795 and 1830, work equal in quality to that of the best European designers. Phyfe's lyre-backed chair was a characteristic piece. From 1800-47 his work was not of so high a standard. He classified his over-decorated mahogany as "bachelor furniture."
